

Goetheanistic Sculpture modeling

with Oldřich Hozman, course will be from 14. – 17. 11. 2026 in Waldorf school in city České Budějovice in Czech republic, street: M. Chlajna 23.

On Saturday, Sunday and Monday from 9 am till 8 pm and on Tuesday from 9 am till 6 pm., both in Czech and English language.

The course covers the fundamentals of sculpting organic forms based on the principles of Goetheanism and Anthroposophy. One of the main goals is to learn how to model the gradual transformation of forms—the so-called metamorphosis of shapes. You will develop a deeper understanding and the ability to model subtle transitions and mutual transformations of forms. For example, smooth transitions between concave and convex surfaces or so-called double-twisted surfaces. The modeling methods will take place on the etheric and mental-spiritual planes. This will involve practical instruction in the concept of the so-called Goetheanistic work of art. While modeling artistic objects, you will learn to perceive and capture not only the polarities between forms but also their intensification and further transformation. Through observation and practice with models, you will realize that one form can shrink or expand while simultaneously transitioning smoothly into another form. You will learn to ensure that the transitions between these forms are continuous. Gradually, through hands-on work with sculpting clay, you will understand and develop the skills to express the changing forms of etheric forces. In practice, this can then be applied to designing organic forms in applied design, organic furniture and interiors, picture frames, utility items and organic architecture. Once you have mastered these forms through clay modeling, you will be able to gradually transition to woodcarving or artistic stonework. The course will be guided in such a way as to have a regenerative and hygienic - therapeutic effect. Through artistic work, you can relax mentally and engage your other senses. You will also warm up both mentally and physically. The goal is to develop an understanding and sensitivity for soft, flowing forms and for the gradual transitions between them—and to learn how to perceive and shape them. During the course, we'll also speak about artistic movements and schools of the Goetheanistic art movement. The course is being held to support initiatives at Waldorf schools that are working to design, renovate and plan their interiors and buildings. This workshop of modeling Basic Goetheanistic Forms will consist of two following parts.

Price of the course is 185 CHF / 200 Eur / 230 USD. Price of the course for waldorf teachers is: 170 CHF / 180 Eur / 210 USD. If you will want to keep your sculptures, one kilogram of clay costs 1 CHF / 1,1 Euro / 1,3 USD. We will be modeling 3-4 objects and we will need about 30-40 kg of sculptural clay per person.
